

Conference 2021
12th of November
Hosted online by DCU Institute of Education

“Unmute Yourself! Communication and Education in Response to Crises”

CALL FOR PAPERS, POSTERS AND WORKSHOPS

We are delighted to invite you to participate in the fifth SPHE Network Conference. This conference aims to bring together academics, teachers, student teachers, postgraduate students, health professionals, policy-makers, NGOs and the wider education community, to engage in dialogue about communication and education in response to crises. There will be a particular focus on the following areas:

- Social media, Relationships and Wellbeing
- Teaching and Learning Online
- Media and Digital Literacy
- Digital Citizenship: Rights, Agency, Responsibilities and Safety Online

Our approach emphasises participation and the sharing of ideas and experiences. This call for papers, posters and workshop proposals is open to all academics, teachers, student teachers, postgraduate students, health professionals, policy-makers, NGOs, and the wider education community. We particularly welcome current research, and/or examples of innovative pedagogies, materials and practices at early childhood, primary, post-primary level and third level. Our keynote speakers are

- Prof. Brian O' Neill (Technological University Dublin)
- Prof. Sonia Livingstone (London School of Economics and Political Science)
- Dr. Debbie Ging (Dublin City University)

All abstract proposals will be blind reviewed by a committee selected by the SPHE Network.

Abstract Deadline: Friday, 11th June 2021.
